Professor Loses Lawsuit

By Charles D. Peer

CSUS Professor Joachim Goldsmith lost a suit filed in Sacramento Superior Court Monday to block the awarding of Exceptional Merit Service Awards to CSU faculty, clearing the way for the awards to be issued.

According to Goldsmith, the suit was filed because he felt the awards were in violation of Article IV, Section 17 of the California Constitution.

Under the provisions of the Aracle, the Legislature has no power to grant, or to authorize a city, county or other public body to grant extra compensation or extra allowance to a public officer or public employee after service has been rendered.

However, Superior Court Judge James T. Ford ruled that unless there was a specific law prohibiting the issue of the awards independent of the Article, the Article in itself did not prohibit them.

Goldsmith said that he does not plan to appeal the decision because the awards have already been distributed on nine campuses and has requested that his attorneys file a dismissal.

"If we were to get an appellate court to decide that the money should not have been disbursed," Goldsmith said, "all these guys would have to pay it back, and I am not willing to do that."

According to CSUS Faculty-Personnel Coordinator Sheila Orman, the Exceptional Merit Service Awards for CSUS will be announced this week. The awards are for $1.500 each and will be given to 39 faculty members, representing an expenditure of $58,500.

The awards were developed as part of a collective bargaining agreement that was ratified with the CSU faculty in August 1983 and are designed to reward exceptional meritorious service in the areas of endeavor consistent with the mission of the campus.

Stress

Group Heips People Cope With Classes And Exams

By Tina Tafoya STATE HORNET STAFF WRITER

Stress affects our every moment. Too much stress can kill but we can't live without it. People must learn to live with positive stress through mental and physical relaxation, according to Sharon Jessup, Women's Stress Alternative (WSA) counseling intern.

WSA is a group designed to help women learn to cope and deal with everyday stressful situations in their lives.

The organization has two components, according to Lucette Decore, acting director. It provides a series of workshops and support groups for communicating. The workshops teach skills such as coping and becoming assertive. They deal primarily with women's issues.

The second component WSA offers is a counseling service. The service is specifically focused on, but not limited to, women. Most of the counseling is for women with a chemical dependence. Decore explains that many women turn to drugs or alcohol to relieve pressures.

An upcoming series of workshops, "Relax a Moment," will focus on techniques for stress reduction. The facilitator will be Jessup. The six workshops begin on Tuesday, May 1 from 7 to 9 p.m. and will continue each Tuesday night. They are individual workshops, yet each is related to the others.

Jessup explained that techniques for coping with stress will be taught through examples of everyday situations.

The main topics of the workshop are: Influencing the Environment/Increased Awareness, Nutrition/Exercise, Progressive Relaxation/Meditation, and Self-Hypnosis, Time Management, and Massage.

The workshops will deal mainly with what is going on in a person's life right now that's causing stress, where to put that stress, and how to deal with it, according to Jessup.

"Being a student is very stressful," stated Jessup. She said many students that go through the workshops are surprised at the impact it's had on explained Decore.

A lot of common factors such as exams, who your friends are, and whether you're happy are situations which people must develop skills in to help themselves cope.

"A lot of the workshops should be helpful to the student population," said Decore.

"Everyone must acknowledge that this is a stressful time . . . they must set aside reward and relaxation time."

their life and at how much the workshop helps.

Everyone must acknowledge that this is a stressful time, said Jessup, they must set aside reward and relaxation time.

A lot of the workshops are basically free, money is not an issue, Other workshops coming up in May include discussions on selfimage, self-esteem, and sexuality.

The Women's Stress Alternative office is located at 1216 18th Street. Reservations ae requested for most of the workshops; they can be made by calling 448-2951.

Grants For Athletes

By Timi Ross

Scholarships valued at $1,000 each will be issued annually to CSUS athletes starting with the 1985-86 school year.

CSUS interim President Austin J. Gerber ended four years of deliberations on Friday, April 13, with the announcement that scholarships would start in the fall of 1985.

Gerber's decision came on the heels of a report issued by the Athletic Advisory Board recommending athletic scholarships or grants-in-aid would be necessary "if CSUS is to be competitive, statewide and nationally, in Division II."

The recommendation was included in a feasibility study the board presented to Gerber two weeks ago.

The scholarship plan is to offer up to 623 grants of $1,000 each beginning in the fall of 1985. The grants are to cover semester fees and books. Currently, fees at CSUS are $339 a semester and books are approximately $100 a semester.

"Over the next two years we expect to be able to offer approximately 100 grants within the NCAA regulations," Gerber said.

The scholarship breakdown for 1985 will include 25 for football, seven each for men's and women's basketball, eight for women's volleyball, four each for baseball and softball, two each for men's and women's track, and three for men's soccer.

The Hornet-Stinger Foundation, which currently has $220,000 in cash reserves, will fund the scholarship program. The Foundation's main purpose, according to one official, is to help CSUS on its way to becoming an NCAA Division II power.

"The success and strength of our community support, via the Stinger Foundation, will dictate whether we can offer grants throughout our total program and perhaps raise the amounts we offer," Gerber said.

According to the feasibility study, the scholarship program will increase to 95 scholarships in 1986 and 97 in 1987, with football getting 40 and 42, respectively. Both the men's and women's basketball teams are expected to offer 10 scholarships each in 1986 and 1987, with women's volleyball offering 12.

"Our initial efforts will place an emphasis on our revenue-producing sports," Gerber said. "Those are football, men's and women's basketball, and volleyball.

"We are spotlighting those programs because we realize that increasing our gate receipts is one of the only ways our program can grow here at Sac State."

Since the Northern California Athletic Conference (NCAC), in which CSUS participates, does not presently allow its members to offer grant-in-aid to student-athletes, the Hornets will be forced to withdraw

Reaction To CSUS Grants Is Mixed

Since the announcement nearly two weeks ago that CSUS will offer athletic scholarships in the fall of 1985, reaction on campus has been mixed.

Acting President Austin Gerber outlined definite plans for the expansion of the Hornet athletic department at a press conference April 13. The program calls for an initial 62 $1,000 scholarships that will result in CSUS' expulsion from the non-scholarship NCAC.

Those in favor of the program include campus Co-athletic Director Irene Shea. "I proposed this two years ago and I am in favor of it and always have been."

Gerber, who approved the plan, said, "I decided that this is the one thing I am going to do. Over the last two years, the advisory board (the Athletic Advisory Board, headed by Cal Boyes) has recommended that our program remain at the Division II level and that we attempt to field a truly competitive array of programs at that level. The board recommended that athletic scholarships, or more properly, grants-in-aid, would be necessary if we are to be competitive, statewide and nationally, in Division II."

Tim Comstock, dean of students, speaking on behalf of Gerber, said, "We feel it's high time that a university of this size in a community of this size, offer grants-in-aid to our athletes. We are the only school in the conference in Division II in the country that prohibits aid. We feel this is an outdated process."

Head Football Coach Bob Mattos, whose program will get 42 of the 62 scholarships, is also in favor.

"Sacramento deserves a good program. This is the biggest step taken in that direction. Obviously it will be rough on the edges at first, but I feel this is a very positive step for the students, the alumni and the community."

Opposition has been heard from the Academic Senate chaired by Alan Wade. The senate, as the authorized voice of the faculty, officially disagrees with any plan for the expansion of athletics that would require additional funding from the academic support budget.

Wade cited resolutions passed April 11 in the senate that reduced faculty allocations in order to protect new funding for intercollegiate athletics

According to The Sacramento Bee, Robert Metcalf, a professor of biological sciences who sits on the Athletic Advisory Committee, voted against the expansion of athletics.

"What's disturbing here is that the program will mean no cost to university and everything will be paid by non-academic funds, but that's not true," Metcalf said.

He described the advisory board that approved the plan as "a stacked committee with a very narrow focus on sports."

Open House Featured Friday

By Cameron Myers

Beginning Friday, April 27, CSUS will be entertaining thousands at the eighth annual CSUS "River City Days" open house.

There will be more than 100 events offered including bands, displays, demonstrations, and art exhibits.

The Air Force ROTC will be making a presentation on "The Soviet Technological Challenge" at 2 and 3 p.m. The psychology department will give demonstrations on biofeedback and stress reduction beginning at 9 a.m. Computer Science will have programming contests and games all day.

"River City Days" is held for prospective students and gives the community an opportunity to visit the campus and see firsthand what it is like.

All department offices will be open to answer questions and explain the intricacies of CSUS.

Some events that will begin on Thursday are a faculty-staff softball game at 4:30 p.m. and a luau on the University Union South Lawn complete with Polynesian dancers. The cost for the luau is $3 for dinner, $1 for dessert, or $3.75 for both.

Friday, however, is the real beginning of the event with the physics and physical science department giving solar energy demonstrations starting at noon. At 10:30 a.m. the 10th annual Student Purchase Award Art Show will be held in the University Union.

Food will be available throughout the day for the hungry spectator beginning with a pancake breakfast at 7 a.m. sponsored by Alpha Chi Omega. Hot dogs and Pepsi will be offered for 25 cents each in both quads. The home economics department will be offering international foods in front of the Home Economics building.

Tram tours of the campus will be given every half-hour starting at 8:30 a.m. Tours of the residence halls will be given as well as tours of the School of Business and the theatre arts facility.

For more information copies of the open house program are available in Adm. 203 and other campus

Amid the tours, demonstrations and displays that will highlight CSUS's "River City Days" festivities, UNIQUE Productions will provide a vast and varied line-up of entertainment features. A dance featuring the local rock band Target is slated for Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the South Gym, (tickets are $2 for CSUS students, $3 general), and a day-long extravaganza of jugglers, musicians and dancers will get under way at noon today on the South Lawn.

Events Planned For River City Days

Resolutions:

Clarke Ticket

The CSUS student government should critically examine the policies of the university administration and work with campus administrators to promote student interests, according to Associated Students Inc. presidential candidate Cyndi Clarke.

Clarke heads a slate that includes Taeisha Mukasa and Dan Romero, candidates for the executive and financial vice president positions, and P. Anthony Thomas, the senate chair candidate.

If elected, Clarke hopes to increase student influence on management of the University Union, increase support for financially troubled athletic programs, and question university policies on a number of issues including use of the Social Security number for student identification.

"Students should question university rule and (Hornet) Foundation rule," said Clarke, currently an ASI senator. Because $3 of each student's registration fee goes to the University Union, a portion of the profits from food service operations should be returned to students, she said.

Regarding increased student control of campus services, Mukasa, the executive vice president candidate, said "the university is the ideal place for students to put the various theories they learn into

Clarke would like to help restore intercollegiate athletic programs including tennis and wrestling. which were cut from the CSUS curriculum this year. Self-supporting programs should be allowed to represent CSUS in intercollegiate competition, she

"I'm a big advocate of athletics," said Clarke. Clarke has joined forces with Mukasa, a member of the Pan-African Student Union, and Romero in an attempt to promote student unity.

The Clarke campaign will feature "one-on-one correspondence with a lot of students to let them know what we stand for," the presidential candidate said.

Mukasa, the vice presidential candidate, hopes students will come to know her "as a person and not as a radical element trying to create disorder."

Thomas, the senate chair candidate, said that he is "light years ahead" of his opponents. He also said his experience has brought nothing but praise from both his colleagues and CSUS administration

"They seem to like the way I operate," said

Currently Arts and Sciences senator, Thomas added that he feels his opponents range from the popular to those representing special interests. "A senate chair must keep order and keep a cohesive relationship with senate members.

"I've had experience being the only freshman senator to be chair of a committee (the Minority Affairs Committee), then being elected by unanimous consent as senate vice chair and running the meetings. If I'm not elected, the senate agenda will be prolonged," said Thomas.

Miller Ticket

Campaigning under the title United Students (U.S.), ASI presidential nominee Pitt Miller stresses teamwork and cooperation between executive officers and senators as the keys to success in the Miller, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, was the president of that fraternity last year and is currently the president of the Interfraternity Council (IFC), which oversees and promotes 14 different fraternities.

The candidate said he believes that he contributed to Sigma Phi Epsilon as its president, has contributed to the IFC and said he is running for ASI president for the challenge of doing something for

Miller said, "I really feel that all of the people on the U.S. ticket are equally as important as I am."

Miller's running mates, all business majors like himself, are Gretchen Reider (executive vice president), Lynn Solomon (financial vice president) and Gary Gaddini (senate chair). Miller said U.S. has chosen Hugh Yamara and Lolita Head for their Business senators and Leon Rinck as the Arts and

According to Miller, the Versatel machines, Burger King, the Children's Center and The State Hornet are the main issues on the campus right now.

He said he does not see any direct ties between the presence of Versatel machines on campus and the apartheid government of South Africa and said he believes all students benefit from the service.

There are pros and cons to having a Burger King on campus, Miller said, but he hasn't studied the issue enough to formulate an opinion.

Miller thinks it is an excellent idea to support the Children's Center and said he is in favor of improv-

Miller said he is in favor of funding The State Hornet because "the campus doesn't survive the same without a newspaper and the communication

If elected, Miller said he would first re-evaluate what the past administration was working on and set up goals and strategies for the upcoming year.

He said he would set up an advisory committee composed of representatives from the key organizations on campus in order to be aware of the different needs of the students.

U.S. plans to promote CSUS by publicizing reputable departments at the university and by encouraging students to support the athletic teams, Miller said.

Day Ticket

Ron Day is currently an ASI Business and Public Administration senator involved in running for the executive office of ASI President. This business major, concentrating in marketing, was a member of the Hornet football program in his freshman year. He attained the position of President of Associates Inc. and enjoys charter membership with a campus social fraternity. If elected, Ron's main objectives would be to expand CSUS alumni base and market the university through ASI.

Running for executive vice president with Ron is Arts and Sciences senator Jan Helder. He has diverse experience as an office holder on campus by attaining positions in such organizations as Golden Key National Honor Society and the Interfraternity Council. Jan is currently a broker at Sacramento Trade Exchange. If elected Jan will concentrate on statewide issues affecting students such as an initiative drive to restrict fee increases.

Running for financial vice president on the Ron Day ticket will be another ASI senator, Ken Bollinger. He has devoted himself to investigating and solving those issues brought to him by concerned students and is currently a member of the ASI Children's Center Parent Advisory Council. As ASI financial vice president he will work to ensure a more equal distribution of ASI monies, a more self-sufficient future for ASI and attempt to make the ASI Children's Center a reality.

Running for senate chair on the ticket will be Chris Acevedo, who will be able to utilize an extensive background in parliamentary procedure.

Future plans that the members on this ticket have decided as priority issues include plans to make CSUS into a community campus, draft new constitution for the fall elections, reorganize ASI at the administrative level and to expand the ASI operating budget to serve more students.

NOTE: The ASI elections will be held Wednesday through Friday, May 2-4, in polling places across campus. This ballot of candidates is, at press time, unofficial pending ASI qualification. Those school senators without statements did not submit them before the announced deadline.

This ballot was compiled by staff members John Davis, Cynthia Laird, Scott D. Schuh, j. K. Snyder and Natalie Weldch. The statements of the school senators are entirely their own.

It is my hope that CSUS students will restore quality representation to our student government in this Spring election. Representatives capable of coherent responsible action. ASI ACTIVITY FEE INCREASE

Since the beginning of ASI in 1947, the activity fee has remained steady at $10 per semester per student. Since then, the programs funded by ASI have continued to increase without subsequent funding in-

Last fall, the student body passed a $2.50 increase in the activity fee for a fund to improve the Children's Center, which is in serious disrepair. The fee now stands at $12.50 per ASI officials now argue that the cost of the programs provided has become prohibitive given the current fee total. The scope and quality of the current ASI programs is not sustainable at the $12.50 level.

Now on the ballot is a proposal to increase the activity fee, paid as a package with the academic fees, $1.50 per year for the next five years. Thus, in five years, the ASI activity fee will total $20.

The question posed to the students is: Should the ASI programs be continued or expanded? If so, then the fee increase proposed should be passed.

STATE HORNET RESOLUTION

The final, modified version of The State Hornet resolution asks for a 50cent, per semester, per student increase in the ASI activity fee.

The reason for separating The Hornet and general fee increases is to morally guarantee the newsaper funding be tied to student enrollment. Part of the Hornet resolution is a recommendation from the students that this 50-cent increase be used for annual grants to the Hornet.

Since early this year, The State Hornet has experienced financial troubles caused by increasing costs and decreasing revenues. The Hornet argues that the costs are unavoidable if semi-weekly production is to continue. Meanwhile, advertising and university funding revenues have stayed even while ASI (or student) funding has dropped from $20,000 to

The question posed to the students is: Should the student body return the funding of The State Hornet to its original level. If so, then the proposed fee increase should be passed and the recommendation that the senate allocated the money to the newspaper be approved.

SMOKING POLICY RESOLUTION

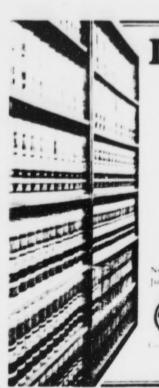

In the wake of several state and national smoking initiatives, a similar type of restrictive policy is proposed to the CSUS students.

The three-part resolution designates smoking and non-smoking areas on campus and defines the guidelines to be used regarding those

No-smoking areas and rooms include classrooms, laboratories, corridors, restrooms, foyers, theatres and recreation rooms in addition to those areas already marked or restricted by Smoking areas designated by the resolution are faculty, staff and administrative offices, public lounges, cafeterias and meetings rooms. The resolution stipulates that these areas must be clearly divided between smoking and non-smoking sections.

The question posed to the students is: should the student government (i.e. the student body) support such a smoking policy. If so, the proposed resolution should be passed.

Schuh Selected As 1984-85 Hornet Editor

A five-inember panel of students and faculty selected Scott D. Schuh as the new editor-in-chief of The State Hornet Tuesday. Schuh will begin his position this fall for the 1984-85 academic year.

"After careful deliberations the editor selection committee decided that Scott was the best qualified for the job. We chose from a small but wellrounded field of applicants and the decision was not one that was easily reached," said current editor-in-chief Scott Harding.

"My biggest goal is keeping the independence of the newspaper and solving current financial problems," said Schuh. "In the long run I would like to modernize The State Hornet to include technology such as computers that would give journalism students a more valuable laboratory exper-

"Next year I would like to see the newspaper become more responsive to the communication needs of the campus," said Schuh. He said he would like to make The State Hornet more entertaining and interesting.

Schuh currently writes sports for The Sacramento Bee. He will work at an internship with The Wall Street Journal this summer. He is a journalism/economics double major and plans to graduate next year.

"I feel Scott will bring enthusiasm and dedication that will continue the tradition of providing the campus with a solid newspaper," said Harding.

The State Hornet Needs A Few Good Editors.

Positions available for 1984-85:

- News Editor
- News Feature Editor
- Sports Editor
- Sports Editor
- Entertainment Editor
 Copy Editors (2)
- · Photography Editor
- Positions are open to all students. Prior journalism experience is preferred but not required. Editorial positions entail about 30 hours per week and monthly stipends are paid. Production days are Mondays and Wednesdays.
- Editors will be responsible for their staff, copy editing and page ayout.
- Applications (one page cover letter, resume and clips or photos) should be submitted to Scott Schuh by noon on Friday, May 4 in The State Hornet office, temporary building KK.

The Scorpions, one of the premier rock bands of today, rocked the Cal Expo Amphitheatre Saturday night before a sold-out crowd of more than 10,000. The Scorps jammed for over two hours with an assortment of heavy metal tunes that had the crowd yelling for more during both encores.

While most heavy metal bands use gimmicks and dress in leather and chains, the Scorpions use just an energy-packed performance to get their point across.

Lead guitarists Matthias Jabs and Rudolf Schenker add most of the intensity as they run around the stage while lead singer Klaus Meine acts as the anchor with his unique vocals.

with his unique vocals.

The cool night air of the amphitheatre was the perfect place for the hot rock-n-roll of the Scorpions who put on the best performance seen in Sacramento in many years. The tunes included "Black Out," "Big City Nights," "Rock You Like a Hurricane" and "No One Like You."

Scholarships

from the NCAC effective June 1, 1985.

Gerber said the move to offer scholarships is consistent with the philosophy of Division II of the NCAA, which believes "in permitting athletically-related financial aid for its student-athletes, but on a more modest basis than that permitted in Division I."

According to the board's study, Hornet teams have two options for competition. The first is to join the only other major Division II conference in the state, the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA). The second is to operate as an independent.

To become a member of the CCAA requires participation in four or more conference sports including basketball and either baseball or track and field in the men's program; and three or more conference sports in the women's program including volley-ball or basketball at least, and softball or tennis. To be an allied member, an institution must field at least one full team in a recognized conference sport.

Currently, the CCAA consists of CSU Bakersfield, CSU Dominquez Hills, CSU Los Angeles, CSU Northridge, Cal Poly Pomona, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, UC Riverside and Chapman College.

The study recommends the CSUS football program join the Western Football Conference (WFC) in 1985. The WFC's present members are Northridge, San Luis Obispo, Portland State, University of Santa Clara and Cal Lutheran.

The recommendation for the men's and women's basketball is to become allied members of the CCAA while the study said that the volleyball team become independent and remain in Division II.

The baseball program has been advised by the study to join the North Coast Baseball League. Its current members are University of Pacific, CSU Fresno, San Jose State, University of San Francisco, Santa Clara, St. Mary's and University of Nevada-Reno.

The study also recommends that all other sports become independent.

Even though scholarships will be offered in 1985, no student-athletes currently enrolled at CSUS will receive an athletic grant-in-aid, nor will student-athletes recruited prior to the 1985-86 season be eligible to receive a grant-in-aid.

Both Gerber and the board have suggested there is a strong need for an academic advising program specifically for student-athletes at CSUS.

The study states that "developing such a program would make CSUS a model at the Division II level."

In related business, CSUS Coathletic Director Irene Shea has recommended a change in the athletic administrative structure.

"After spending eight years with this university I feel I have a good sense of what the administrative structure should be in order to accomplish our goal of beginning scholarship program in 1985," Shea said. "I have recommended that there be a director and an associate director of intercollegiate athletics at CSUS."

According to Shea, she would assume the role as associate athletic director.

Gerber also announced at the press conference that the administering of CSUS' intercollegiate athletics will be transferred to Vice-Provost Tim Comstock of student affairs. The athletic department is currently administered under the director of university advancement. Calvin Boyes.

ASI Calls For Increased Fees

By Charles D. Peer

Bowing to the pressures of financial deficits, the Associated Students Inc. senate has placed a measure on the ballot of the spring elections to increase the Associated Student fees.

The measure calls for the fees to be increased $1.50 per student per year for each of five consecutive years to a total of $7.50 and will commence with the fall semester 1985.

According to Sen. Paul Smith, Undeclared, the ASI was unable to fund $143,000 of funding requests this year. He predicts that the fee increase would cover that amount in the first few years.

"This would increase our buying power back to the state that we were back in the 1950s and 1960s," Smith said. "It would increase our ability to fund projects throughout the campus."

In addition to the ASI not being able to fund many requests, several of the programs that are funded by the ASI have run into deficits this year. According to ASI Controller Willie Balagtas, the ASI business office faces a projected deficit of between $10,000 to $18,000, and the Mountain Wolf Sports, Aquatic Center and Women's Resource Center are also likely to run into deficits.

The measure to increase the AS fees will be the second fee increase measure on the ballot, joining a measure that is designed to increase revenues for The State Horne through a 50 cent per student, per semester increase.

However, language that would have earmarked funds from the increase for The State Hornet has been deleted because of possible conflict with state law. If the measure is passed the increased funds will go to the ASI without any restrictions on how the money must be allocated.

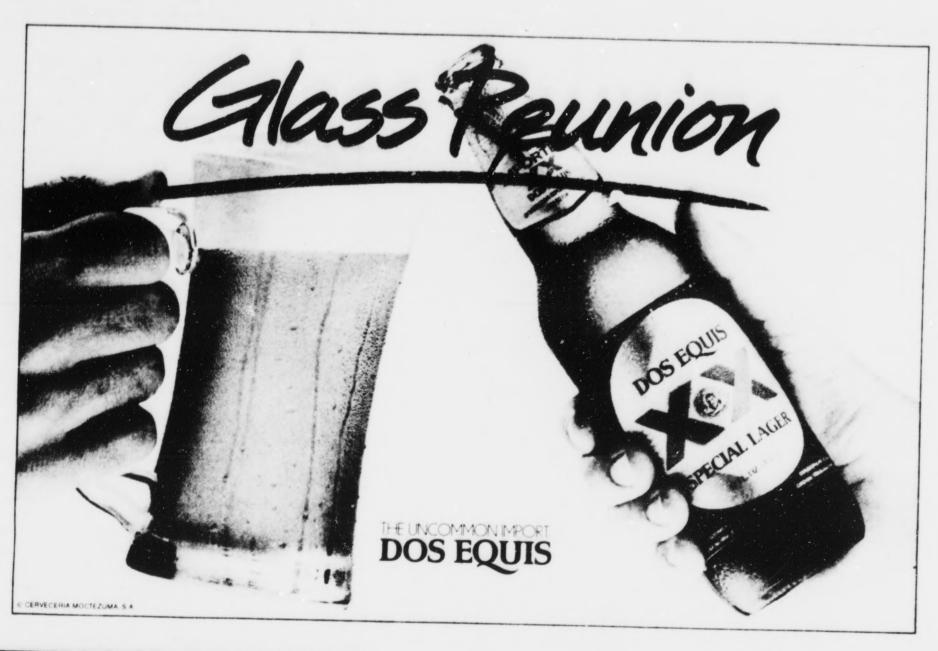

Correction

The fraternity named in the photo caption regarding the Marvin Gaye Tribute and the story regarding Fisk University (April 12) was Omega Psi Phi, not Alpha Psi Phi as reported. The State Hornet regrets the inaccuracy.

When you need big favors you ask good friends.

Student and other campus reaction was mixed.

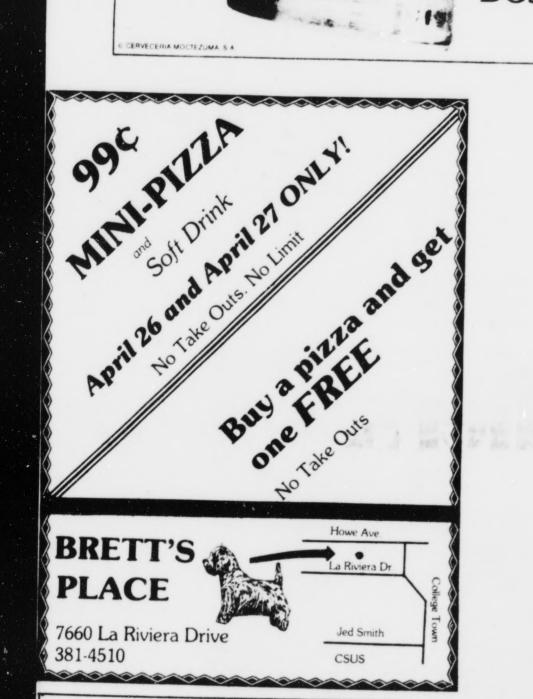

Business fraternity president Mike Perry said, "Truthfully, athletes don't have the time to work so the scholarships will be able to help them. It's been on the back burner for too long. I think Gerber did a good thing by getting it going.

Former football player Kelly Graham said, "There's not enough to gain for what they're looking for. I think Davis has proved that scholarships aren't the answer. It's the coaching."

He also believes that the scholarships were mainly directed to the football team. "I think the other scholarships are there as a token, just so that football can get

At the press conference, however, Gerber sought to reassure those uncertain about the program. "It is clear that this decision does not have unanimous support. Concern is, rightfully, with the impact on the academic programs. I want to assure the campus that additional support of athletics will not come at the expense of the campus in instructional programs."
